NEWS & INFORMATION

NACAC's new "Pulse on College Admission" report is now available for students, families, counselors, and others to find out what hundreds of colleges and universities have decided about the upcoming college application season. More than 450 NACAC-member institutions contributed to the report, with more responses added daily. Key findings include:

- 78 percent plan to resume all in-person classes in Fall 2021
- 84 percent will be either test-optional or test-blind for the Fall 2022 admission cycle
- 12 percent will require a COVID vaccine to return to in-person programs; 55 percent remain undecided

Students and families can use the report to help make plans for enrolling this fall or applying next year. Just search to show plans for an individual institution, or filter by the criteria that's important to you.
